

Disk Caching Notes

Windows XP among others are often installed with Write Caching enabled. This can cause serious corruption of files across a network.

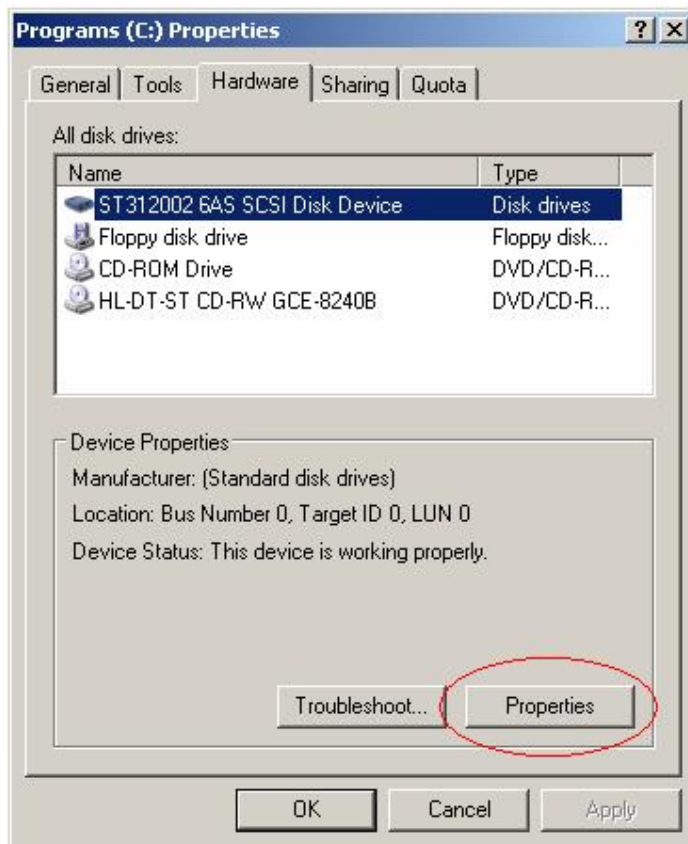

Here's how to turn it off:

Open My Computer

Right click on the C: drive (it will have a name)

Choose the Hardware Tab and select the main hard drive as pictured

Then press the Properties button as circled in red (lower right)

Choose the Policies Tab (circled in red) and UNCHECK the Enable Write Caching on the Disk option.

NOTE: In Windows 2000 the Policies Tab may be called Disk Properties
SCSI Drives will probably not have the Disk Caching option
